1. It was pointed out to [] before his lecture at the Command and Staff College, Maxwell AFB, that the student body was considerably younger (averaging about 34) than it had been in previous years. He was also informed that the rivalry between the Command and Staff College and the Air War College had reached a point where there was a sharp competition for guest lecturers. The solution appears to be a "no-raiding" policy. He was told that most visiting lecturers at the Command and Staff College would now not be invited to speak at the Air War College.
